

Road Safety Education for Schools

In order to provide a road safety education methodology for school children, IRTE with fifteen years of research has developed a "school conclave programme. This programme is initiated through the training of teachers in order for them to impart need based knowledge of road safety through the already existing subjects of the school curriculum, IRTE has since trained over 4500 school teachers for over 1550 schools across the country under this programme.

With the support of the International Road Federation (IRF), IRTE has also developed the Draft Road Safety Curriculum for classes sixth to tenth which has been submitted for appraisal to the NCERT.
